"The Same Thing Over Again."

(Japanese Standard.

An interesting little story was wended its way up from Odessa, and it is received direct from [illegible] who should know all about it, we give it to our readers as an indisputable fact.

It appears that among the [illegible] out on the voters list by the Ottoman that they were "21 years fully entitled to be registered as v... there was one who resided with his parents at Odessa. On looking over the list of Conservative Committee came across name in question among a number of others improperly entered, and an application was made to strike it off. In accordance with the provisions of the statute a notice was sent to the boy two weeks previous to the holding of the court, and there appeared to be nothing in the way of putting the name off But the father of the embryo voter was not an Odessa Grit of the true sort for nothing, and he decided to play a trick on the wicked Tories. Taking the Bible containing the family register from the shelf, he copied all the names into another bible, but on altering the entry regarding his son's age as to make it appear that he was born in December 1863, instead of 1865. He chuckled over his shrewdness and laid the book away, feeling quite confident that the Revising Officer would be satisfied of the maturity of his son when the Holy Bible was produced. The day of the Court arrived, the fateful boy was summoned by the Conservatives to give evidence in the matter of his boy's age. He positively swore that the youth was 22 years of age last December, and in order to make the statement more emphatic announced his willingness to bring the bible into court. The Conservative lawyer told him to do so, and off he started bare-headed in the hot sun, eager to make a good Grit vote. In a short time he returned and, handing the book to His Honor, remarked: "There it is, sir." Judge Price opened the bible and found an entry therein which stated that the young fellow was born in December 1865, and that consequently he would not be 21 years of age until next December. The old man was struck with shame and anger, and it was some time before he could answer when asked why he recorded his own statement with the entry in the bible. It has since transpired that, instead of getting the book himself, he told his wife to get it for him and she, ignorant of the roguery of her spouse, handed him the wrong one. The boy's name was struck from the list.

It is a well-known fact that the "CABLE" and "EL PADRE" brands of cigars are the oldest, most reliable and best value in the market. For the last quarter of a century the demand for these brands has steadily increased, necessitating the employing of close on to ONE THOUSAND operatives. Smokers will find it to their advantage to insist upon having the above mentioned brands, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to palm off inferior goods for the sake of additional gain.

The Bed of an Eastern Prince.

Some time last year there was a wooden bedstead manufactured which was intended for the use of the King of Siam. It was fourteen feet wide and divided into three parts, the centre part being raised about eighteen inches. This piece of furniture, being of such unusual dimensions, caused a slight sensation among those who were permitted to examine it.

But the bedstead made in Paris for an Indian prince would draw thousands to see it were it exhibited in New York even if fancy prices were set for admission. The bedstead is partially made of silver, and cost many thousand of dollars. At each corner stands a beautifully modelled nude female figure (life size) holding a delicately constructed fan. Each figure, it is said, wears a wig of real hair. This is to be regularly dressed once a week by the court barber. On the ground floor, reached by getting into bed, the weight of his body sets certain machinery into motion the effect of which is that so long as his royal highness enjoys horizontal refreshment the wigs making gently fan the sleeper. If the figures at the foot of the bed are required to do in like manner, this can be accomplished by means of a clock like apparatus. Moreover, should the dusky owner of the bed wish to be lulled to sleep by the dulcet strains of sweet music, this can be done by touching a spring. The bottom of the bed contains a large musical box, which is so arranged that the tunes can be loud or soft if desired.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 8 years' standing, having tried almost every know remedy, "besides two Buffalo Physicians," without relief. I feel thankful to him; he thinks it cannot be recommended to highly.

It is a well-known fact that the "CABLE" and "EL PADRE" brands of cigars are the oldest, most reliable and best value in the market. For the last quarter of a century the demand for these brands has steadily increased, necessitating the employing of close on to ONE THOUSAND operatives. BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JULY 13.

IN WHAT CAPACITY!

Our former townsman, Mr. T. S. Carman, of Belleville, has gone to California to attend a deaf mute convention.—Napanee Express.

In what capacity, pray? It cannot, certainly, be as an educator. Ah! we have it! T. S's. connection with the instruction of deaf mutes consists in the reprinting in his office of the annual report of the Ontario Institution. The connection is, it will be seen, rather remote; but T. S. was never subject to censure for being too modest.

GOOD ADVICE.

It is a pity that questions more or less intimately connected with politics cannot be generally discussed in a friendly and business-like manner. It will take the advice of B with regard to the effect of a certain kind of manure in increasing a crop, but the two fall out when one presents a proposition with regard to the legislation needed to increase the purchasing power of that crop. Yet the object of both discussions is to add to the wealth of the country and to augment the comfort and reduce the labor of the inhabitants.—Hamilton Times.

This is very good advice, but it cannot be acted upon as long as the Grits are as abusive as they are—calling for instance, Conservatives who sought, whether successfully or not, to lease timber lands, grazing lands or mining lands on terms upon which they were open to all applicants, thieves and robbers of the public domain. The Times itself has been one of the worst offenders in this regard, as it said on one occasion that nobody but a lunatic could endorse the N. P. When the Grit party are brought to the discussion of public affairs in a fair and courteous manner they will find that the Conservatives will vie with them in courtesy.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

Sir Richard Cartwright and Dr. Platt, M. P., are to speak at a political gathering at Trenton on Wednesday evening next. One can understand people wishing to hear Sir Richard; but Dr. Platt!

The Montreal Witness (Grit) remarks: "The Canadian Government has undoubtedly achieved a triumph in the fishing question, the American fishermen and fishermen's advocates having at last been convinced by the logic and stern facts that the Canadian coasts are not theirs and that they have everything to gain by an amicable agreement with Canada. The American Government has always been of this opinion, but it has been opposed and thwarted by selfseeking politicians and Jingo statesmen and newspapers. That even the most unreasoning have at last been convinced is proved by the sudden change of front of the New York Herald, the most rabid of all those opposed to the negotiation of a fishery treaty with Canada. In a long letter from Washington, leaded out to give it prominence, it admits the legality and strict justice of the Canadian case, and in effect advises the American fishermen that it would be in their interests to have an amicable settlement."

Mr. Blake has been quoting some of his own old speeches in public. It is scarcely necessary to say that his deliverances on the Riel question in the Ontario Legislature fifteen years ago are not amongst those from which he has quoted.

Scripture, if quoted at all, remarks the Mail, should be quoted with knowledge and with care. Sir Richard Cartwright, desiring to tell the South Huron Reformers that the Dominion Government is hastening to its doom, declared that he could plainly see "the handwriting on the wall." Now it was Belshazzar who saw the handwriting on the wall, and the interpretation was not that Belshazzar's enemies were to be confounded, but that he himself, having been weighed in the balance and found wanting, was to lose his position. And, we are told, "in that night was Belshazzar, the King of the Chaldeans, slain." If Sir Richard really does discern the handwriting on the wall the meaning of it must be that the Rielites in his party have gone against him, and are determined to oust him. This in the light of the action of Connor, South Huron and Centre Wellington, is a very reasonable translation.

A CARDINAL SIN.

'Look here, Finey,' he said, 'I am going now to call on Frances—come with me. You will understand everything after you have seen her.'

She was curious as any woman would be, yet she shrank from going. She could in no wise lend her countenance to the marriage of her brother with a woman concerning whom her husband had stated he knew something.

'Not now, Allen,' she said; 'after you are married, perhaps—that is, if you are resolved to marry.'

'As you like,' he said, coldly; 'but don't forget that a man treasures up a slight of this kind, even when a sister comforts it.'

'Oh, Allan!' she cried, weeping, 'don't you, of all people, turn against me—my husband's own brother, which, the Hon. Prince of Wales' visit, some years ago. The hotels and restaurants were unable to supply the demands that were made upon their larders. They had such a harvest as they never before experienced. Special excursion trains arrived in the city from Coe Hill, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Millbrook, Lindsay, Port Hope, Peterborough, Lakefield, Madoc, Campbellford, Tamworth and Napanee. The steamer Quinte at 10 a. m. brought in a large number from Deseronto and Northport and the Varuna from Trenton and Redneriville. Altogether there were 75 lodges in the procession and representatives from about 150 lodges. All the trains came in over the Grand Trunk and were run down to the Market Square, where the various Lodges were formed and marched to the Agricultural grounds. Upon arriving at the grounds each Lodge was photographed, and then dismissed for dinner. Although the syndicate which contracted to feed the multitude had ample provision to accommodate 4,000 people, they were compelled to turn away hundreds, not being able to provide them with room at the tables at the time of the rush. Many who depended upon securing a meal on the grounds preferred to come down town rather than wait, but found upon arriving at the hotels that they had not bettered their condition. By 1:30 p.m. the majority had been fed, and began to fall into line for the procession. At 2:30 a start was made, the procession leaving the grounds from the gateway east of the main building. They passed out in the following order:—

A Grand Demonstration.

Orangemen Gathered from Every Part of the Province.

Addresses by Sir Alexander Campbell, Hon. Mr. Robertson and Others.

Sir Alexander Campbell, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Grand Master of Eastern Ontario, addressed them. He said it had been announced that the Grand Master of Ontario East would preside during the platform meeting, but he noted with pleasure that there was one present who had grown up in the Orange ranks, and had not only occupied the highest rank in the order, but was also a distinguished and able Minister of the Crown. He would call upon the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, to take the chair.

Mr. Bowell, upon coming forward, was received with enthusiasm. He said it was a source of great satisfaction to him to see men before him who had been associated with him in Lodge work 40 years ago, looking as hale and hearty as ever. He believed they were as ready to day to defend British connection with the bullet or the bayonet, if the case demanded, as they ever were. (Cheers). He would not detain them, owing to the lateness of the hour, but would call upon the Rev. Bro. John Halliwell to lead in prayer.

Rev. Mr. Halliwell, in a few well chosen words asked for God's blessing upon the proceedings of the day, and that the true principles of religion may ever be taught.

Rev. T. W. Smithett, D.D., Provincial Grand Chaplain, then moved the following resolution:

That assembled here in thousands representing the Protestantism of Central Ontario, we

First declare our unalterable devotion to the Throne of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, and rejoice that Providence has spared her to see the announcement of the fiftieth anniversary of her reign, fraught as it has been with blessings to her subjects and resulting in the growth and added power of her great Empire.

Second, That on this one hundred and ninety sixth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, we thank God for the success which attended the Revolution of 1688 95, thereby dethroning that despot James the II., terminating the baneful Stuart dynasty, and placing on the Throne a Protestant Monarch in the person of William the III, of glorious, pious, and immortal memory.

Third, That believing that only in proportion as nations are led to accept the doctrine of the Protestant Reformation, do they enjoy the highest forms of civil and religious liberty, we give thanks for the marvellous extension of Protestant principles, and our resolve is by God's grace to maintain and perpetuate the same.

Mr. Smithett in speaking to the resolution pointed out the liberties enjoyed by British subjects, and asserted that England stood at the very apex of civilization, because she believed in the providence of God. Her empire extended all over the globe, and the name of Britain was all powerful.

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
No fort nor bronzed keep,
Her march is o'er the mountain wave,
Her home is on the deep.

Our fathers have bought for us a glorious, civil and religious liberty, but it cost many their life's blood. Every man can now follow the dictates of his conscience. This was purchased in 1688. When Victoria was informed that she was Queen of England she first asked her Lords to pray that God would give Her strength and knowledge to discharge the duties of the empire and the prayer had been answered. God forbid that we should ever part with any part of our inheritance. It seemed that there was a viper of rebellion every 100 years and they had to be killed or cured. He believed the people of the present generation would prove equal to the emergency. Well might the poet of 100 years ago sing, in view of the present struggles.

When Vulcan forged the bolts for Jove,
In Aetnas burning glow,
Neptune petitioned he might prove,
Their use and power below.
But finding in the boundless deep,
Such treasures would but idly sleep,
He would they armed Britannia's hands
To guard from foes our native land,
Rule Britannia, Britannia rule the waves,
Britons never, never shall be slaves.

Rev. E. W. Sibbald, in seconding the motion, said he was gratified in witnessing one of the most magnificent demonstrations of Orangemen that the country had ever seen. The public may have a misconception of the object of the demonstration. It was to show the feeling of adherence to, and the maintenance of the British empire. Victoria not only stood upon the throne as a Queen, but as an example of virtue, a true mother and a noble woman. William of Orange was not only a King but a man who made truth the highest standard of the times. He is glorious, and pious, and immortal. His memory will ever be perpetuated and cherished in the heart of every Protestant. So long as England upholds the principles of truth, so long will she maintain her supremacy. The time was upon us when we should show our appreciation of the religious privileges we now enjoy. We should advance them as well as maintain them. If there is a lack of loyalty and sincerity, a gathering like this will promote zeal. There was too much lack of zeal. There was a force at work which was turning people from their religious principles. Political partizanship was doing this. When he saw any party or people taking to themselves privileges which are not for the common good, then Protestant parties must be united and stand as one. Some said that clergymen should not mix in politics. When politics become so bad that clergymen could not take part in their discussion, they must be in a bad condition. When he saw other denominations educating their flocks in a certain direction, was it wrong for him as a Christian minister to take a part on the side which he believed to be right? He as a Christian minister to take a part on the side which he believed to be right? He had higher privileges were not enjoyed Catholics in a Protestant country than in any other! But when a certain body of men more than other denominations, it is not time for Protestants to interfere in their rights!

The Chairman in sanctioning the right of clergymen to meddle in politics on public platforms created a laugh by saying if ministers know more of what was behind a government, perhaps they would have more charity for members of that government. Also if members of the government knew what was behind a minister they would have more charity for the minister.

The resolution was then put and carried unanimously, amidst great applause.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, upon being called, said he was glad to see people from all parts of the country, and the one name which called them together was Protestantism. He believed all would concur in the spirit of the following resolution:

That we deeply deplore the agitated state in which the people of the Empire are involved at the present moment, and desire to express our hearty sympathy with our brethren and fellow subjects in Ireland in the trial they are undergoing, at the instigation of a Parliamentary representation of a faction calling themselves Nationalists, who were once characterized by the Right Hon. Wm. Ewart Gladstone as "steeped to the lips in treason, men who are wading through rapine to the disintegration of the British Empire," and whose objects have been openly avowed by Mr. Parnell, their chief leader, at Cincinnati, in the following language: "None of us, whether in America or Ireland, will be satisfied until we have destroyed the last link which keeps Ireland bound to England," and also a few days since by Mr. Healy, another of their leaders, as follows: "Treason has ever been a curse and a blight. Now, aided by Mr. Gladstone, we are going to make it, and get rid of it forever."

That the provisions of the Home Rule bill recently submitted to the Imperial Parliament, if it should have no other effect than the dismemberment of the British Empire—a result obnoxious to every loyal Briton.

That the distress in certain parts of Ireland arises, not from political but from religious and economic causes, a proof of which is to be found in the prosperity of Ulster.

That while in favor of any measure which would create and give powers to Local Councils or Assemblies for England, Ireland, and Scotland to deal with local questions, thereby enabling the Imperial Parliament to deal with Imperial questions, we again express our opposition to such a Parliament as Mr. Gladstone proposed for Ireland, and rejoice that his Government have sustained so signal a defeat in their present appeal to the country.

Mr. Johnson said he believed the sentiments expressed would find an echo in the hearts of all present. It is not the laws of England that makes one part of Ireland prosperous and the other part suffering from famine. He defied any one to answer why one part of Ireland was prosperous and the other not. Both had the same laws, yet in one part they said the laws caused the famine. The people in the south were not so thrifty and industrious as those in the north. Their religious teachers were directing them to look to some laws to help them from their trouble instead of teaching them to do a good days' work. A good natured Irishman was like a rubber ball, the harder he was knocked down the higher he bounded up. Commerce had deserted Limerick and gone to Belfast. Again he asserted that it was economic and religious principles which was the cause of the misfortune of the south of Ireland. He believed that Home Rule for Ireland meant Rome rule. The more ignorant a constituency was in Ireland the stronger was the Nationalistic feeling in it. So long as the servant girls in America could be induced to furnish funds, so long would men agitate the rights of Ireland.

Mr. John White, M.P. for East Hastings, seconded the resolution. He called attention to the fact that the bible was being crowded out of the public schools, and the ministers of the gospel sat idly by while King Archbishop Lynch dictated what should and should not be read in the schools. After he had brought the good book into contempt, he would trample it under foot. He, the speaker, was the only one in the House of Commons to oppose the resolution to Gladstone in favor of Home Rule. While the electors of East Hastings stood up for him he would oppose Home Rule, and demand that the scriptures pure and simple be read in our schools. First stir up your ministers, then tell the home Government to attend their own business. England will do what is right. She has the most enlightened Government in the world. He said, don't throw the Protestants of Ireland to the wolves. King William fought the Battle of the Boyne not for England, nor Germany nor Canada but for Protestantism. Stir up your preachers and tell them to get up and oppose Archbishop Lynch in dictating what shall be read in the schools. Mr. Blake, he said, often showed his coat-tails in the House of Commons. He made a mistake in opposing the Orange bill, and he believed East Hastings would show him at the coming election that he had erred in slandering him falsely, as he had done. He believed that the cowardly attack which had been made upon him by Mr. Blake and his followers would be resented by the electors of his Riding. His remarks were warmly received.

The resolution was carried, when three cheers were proposed by the chairman for the Queen and the maintenance of the British empire, which were given with a will. At the suggestion of Mr. Johnson, lusty cheers were given for Hon. Mr. Bowell and Mr. John White, when the crowd rapidly dispersed and took their respective trains for home. Cheers were also given for Mr. Johnson. At 11 o'clock p. m. the city was quiet and deserted. The police report that, considering the number in the city, the day was remarkably quiet.

The Committee of Management were untiring in their efforts to manage affairs to the satisfaction of all interested, and were eminently successful. Bro. Wm. Johnson, Grand Master of Ontario East, and Bro. F. M. Clarke were the moving spirits of the day. To their tact and skillful management much praise it due. It was the universal verdict that the day was all that could be desired.

His death will revive a flood of memories. Harry Warner left his father all right when he started for the city this morning, and was shocked to hear by telegraph of his bereavement. The deceased to-day was 79 years of age, had been for 40 years postmaster of Wilton, was warden of the united counties, and later of Lennox and Addington. He was a useful man, and the public regret his end. Mrs. Dr. Eakins, of this city, is a daughter of the deceased gentleman.

An Orderly Day.

With but two exceptions, the rows, which occurred yesterday were among "the boys" of the city who took advantage of the license given on such days and settled up old scores. Considering that many who were in the city came from Scott Act Counties where liquor is scarce, a record of four drunks on the police register is remarkable. Yet it shows the quality of the crowd which overran the city.

Correspondence.

Whilst correspondents will be accorded space for the expression of their ideas on topics of public interest, it must be in all cases understood that the views so expressed are simply those of the correspondents themselves.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—For general information it may not be out of place for me to inform the public through you how the work is being done at the fair grounds.

By resolutions passed at the various meetings of the general committee, due announcement of which was made through the press, it was deemed advisable to have the work done by the day, under instructions of the grounds and building committee and under the supervision of the secretary and a competent mechanic, the material to be got at the lowest possible cost and without profit or commission to any one. It was not deemed practicable to invite tenders, there being a large quantity of old material which had never been known and utilized. Any person wishing to see the vouchers could do so by calling on Mr. Hudson, Esq., Public school Inspector, who is Treasurer, and I shall be most happy to give any information in my power and I expect to give the public a detailed statement of the wh le matter when completed.

I wish to state, and I think every gentleman who has attended the various meetings, will bear me out in saying, that party or politics has never been alluded to in any manner, and I appeal to every resident of Belleville and the County to lay aside party or anything else that will tend to discourage the enterprise and to join heartily with the committee, who are working honestly and zealously to establish in Belleville a successful fair for the Bay of Quinte District.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. H. FORE,
Sec'y, Bay of Quinte Agl. Ass.

Belleville, 12th July, 1886.

The Minister of Customs

INTERVIEWED BY THE GAZETTE—HE FAVORS IMPRISONMENT FOR CUSTOMS FRAUDS, AND DISCUSSES THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SPECIAL COURT.

Hon. M. Bowell was interviewed by a Gazette reporter at Montreal on Saturday. The hon. gentleman begins by upholding the employment of special agents, as more effective, in exposing fraud. He says, too, that more severe penalties might be imposed, and that gaol sentenced to imprisonment instead of fine, as in the United States; he can see no difference between cheating the revenue of the country and stealing from private persons. Mr. Bowell states his belief that criminal prosecutions would have a more deterrent effect on persons who intend committing frauds, and in answer to the question, "Do you intend to move in the direction of having such a law passed?" he says, "I can reply to the question by saying that I have no doubt that owing to what has occurred changes will be made so as to better protect the revenue and punish those who are found guilty of smuggling or other frauds."

The Minister is strongly in favor of a special Customs Court, with discretionary powers vesting, "There are cases in which equity would suggest lenient punishment, although on the face the crime might look as aggravated as if there were intentional fraud.

Mr. Bowell says, further :—"I propose shortly to issue new instructions and to establish new rules by which we hope to prevent fraud in future. So long as there are importers who conspire to cheat the Government they will, I fear, find some means to accomplish their object, no matter how stringent the rules may be.

For instance, a man will obtain a correct invoice from the firm from whom he purchases his goods, while at the same time he obtains a number of invoice blanks to be filled in with reduced prices. He leaves one of those false invoices at the Customs; another he takes home and pastes in his invoice book, and the correct one he may either destroy or hide. The only means in that case of reaching the truth is by seizing the books of the implicated importer. If they are destroyed, as has been the case with some firms, then the chances of discovering the fraud are remote and very difficult to reach." In some cases, the hon. gentleman remarks, seizures have been made on the strength of information from the selling firms in Europe; but there is a danger of innocent parties being injured by false affidavits, and the insinuations of unscrupulous rivals.

The reporter went on to ask :—"You may have noticed how in some newspapers a desire that the matter in connection with the $4,000 paid counsel in the McLachlan case should be brought into court."

Hon. Mr. Bowell—"Yes; I have read the articles, and I have no hesitation in saying that as far as they relate to me or to any one of my colleagues in the Ministry they are utterly false. I am equally of opinion that they are false so far as they relate to two members of Parliament."

Reporter :—"Do you intend to take any proceedings against the newspapers which have instituted charges against members of the Government and of Parliament in this connection?"

Hon. Mr. Bowell—"The charges are so vague and no names having been mentioned, I am advised by the Hon. Mr. Church that a case would not lie against the papers in question. If, however, they will make any definite charge, or mention the name of any Minister of the Crown, on which an action can be based, it will be taken into Court forthwith. I may add that my visit to the city to-day was principally for the purpose of consulting counsel on this point."

The interview then ended.

Cholera and all summer complaints are so quick in their action that the cold hand of death is upon the victims before they are aware that danger is near. If attacked do not delay in getting the proper remedies. Try a dose of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, and you will get immediate relief. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to effect a cure.

BRITISH POLITICS

A STIRRING SPEECH BY LORD HARTINGTON.

He Denounces the Irish-American Conspiracy.

Moonlighters Stealing 70 Arms.

LONDON, July 13.—In his speech at Derby last night, Lord Hartington upbraided the members of the Government, who, he said, while saving the Queen had compromised alliance with the members of a Parliamentary party having at least a connection with an association whose aims were treasonable and whose ends were obtained by nefarious means. If we yield now, he concluded, to our Irish-American enemies in order to obtain a temporary respite we or our successors will sooner or later have to fight the battle over with diminished means. If we exercise our English judgment, fortitude, patience and courage we will defeat and crush the nefarious designs of conspirators against the Empire. Lord Hartington was enthusiastically cheered.

A party of moonlighters entered the residence of Mr. Mahoney, Limerick member of Parliament, near Listowell last night, and stole 70 rifle arms.

A CARDINAL SIN.

'Look here, Finey,' he said, 'I am going now to call on Frances—come with me. You will understand everything after you have seen her.

She was curious as any woman would be, yet she shrank from going. She could in no wise lend her countenance to the marriage of her brother with a woman concerning whom her husband had stated he knew something.

'Not now, Allen,' she said; 'after you are married, perhaps—that is, if you are resolved to marry.'

'As you like,' he said, coldly; 'but don't forget that a man treasures up a slight of this kind, even when a sister confers it.'

'Oh, Allan!' she cried, weeping, 'don't you, of all people, turn against me—my life is not a very happy one.

He said no more, kissed her, put her into a cab, and sent her home; but he felt, as he drove to St. John's Road, that one of the greatest pleasures of life could give would be to wring Digby Bourchier's neck.

To him Digby was an impostor. After Josephine's marriage, and when he had learned how the man had been admitted to his father's house, he had at once jumped at the conclusion that something startling, and making a great difference to his own prospects in life, would result from the sudden appearance and recognition of this strange cousin. He had asked his father coldly for an explanation, and Mr. Bourchier had been obliged to admit that he had been frightened and deceived by a specious tale and concocted evidence, which at one time he had trembled lest the estate should be torn from him. He had now found out the imposture, but not before the adventurer had married his favorite daughter. It never entered Allan's head that Digby was not the representative of the bastard branch. He was, he thought, simply a clever scoundrel, who had traded on his knowledge of the family history, and by persuading Mr. Bourchier of his legitimacy, had forced his way into the family circle with such direful results. It was not a pleasant history to recount, so no wonder Allan simply told Frances that his sister had married his cousin, and the cousin had turned out a rascal. There was no chance of any intimacy springing up between them, so there was no need to say more.

Josephine called on Allan's wife after her marriage. She was determined not to like her, and partially succeeded in keeping her resolve. Her manner was somewhat constrained and her politeness forced. Frances saw it, and read clearly her disapproval to the marriage. She was a far prouder and more sensitive woman than her visitor; but her heart was kindly disposed to a sister of her husband's, whose life was such an utter wreck, so she said nothing about the matter to Allan.

'You would like me to call on your sister some day?' she asked him.

'No; I would much rather not. I would rather you never entered her husband's house. Make a point of it, Josephine welcome here whenever she comes, and explain to her that I do not wish you to call. She will understand perfectly why it is.'

'Very well,' said Frances.

'You know nothing of her husband, I suppose?' said Allan.

'How should I, why do you ask?'

'Josephine fancied he hinted at having met you somewhere.

She shook her head.

'I know no one named Bourchier until I knew you.'

Bourchier sounds such a different word to Bourchier that even the name of Digby being coupled with it awoke no associations in her mind. Perhaps she had forgotten; perhaps never heard the Christian name of that brief-lived infant brother whom she had never seen.

So it was, that although Frances and George Manders were now so closely connected by marriage they never came in contact. He was in no hurry to meet her. As soon as Mr. Bourchier left the world he would have a chat with Allan. He fancied Mr. Bourchier was not destined to live long. He knew what his true complaint was, and from time to time jogged it on by demands of money and threats. He could wait awhile and see. If Philip Bourchier's health improved, it was to him the true position of Allan's wife must be told; with him the bargain must be made—perhaps a supplementary one with Allan. He would make no mistake this time. A large sum down, and a freer, merrier life in the new world. He was getting tired of London. He would take care not to be too clever this time.

Josephine, chiefly at Allan's request, came several times to his house; but no affection sprung up between the sisters-in-law. Digby's words and insinuations were always coming back to Josephine. His manner had persuaded her that for once he was not lying—the astonishment had been too natural to be counterfeited. Although she was compelled to own that Frances' beauty was enough to absolve Allan from the charge of rashness; although she could not find in thought, word, or deed any thing to object to, the feeling that the match was an unsuitable one for her brother would not be got rid of. However she kept her fears to herself, and in her letters to her mother and Mabel said nothing that was not favorable to her new sister-in-law.

Had Digby chosen to tell her any more she would not have listened. She was too proud to permit him to insinuate any thing to the detriment of the girl who was now her brother's wife. It was not likely, therefore, that she would in any way approach the subject again. On his side Digby said no more. His ambiguous words had done all he needed in preventing his wife and Frances from becoming friends and allies, and so lessened the danger of a premature revelation.

GOOD THE YEAR ROUND.—Nations Pills are a good blood purifier, liver regulator and mild purgative for all seasons.

A Wrong Opinion.

Many a dollar is paid for prescriptions for some disease that never troubles the patient, and when the sole difficulty was corns, which a few of Freeman's Worm Powders would remove. These Powders are pleasant, safe, and sure, contain their own cathartic, and are adorned for children or adults.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and young man in the land.

You probably ask why we recommend these Remedies.
It is because we know them to be reliable remedies, endorsed by leading physicians throughout the Dominion, for the cure of specific diseases, and not claiming to cure everything. Also because they have the exact formula printed on each bottle label, thereby enabling the purchaser to know what he is drinking.
The time is rapidly approaching when intelligent people will refuse to take quack cure-alls, the ingredients of which are kept secret, but will insist upon knowing just what they are taking.
We have on hand constantly a fresh and complete stock of PURE DRUGS, Perfumery, Etc.; also all the leading Patent Medicines.
